‘Managing Aggression and Violence in Schools’

The purpose of our course is to provide school staff with:

- (1) The maximum legal knowledge and vocabulary to defend themselves against potential complaints, vexatious or otherwise,
- (2) The correct legal and practical terminology in how to report an aggressive or violent incident,
- (3) The necessary tactical awareness skills in order to produce a positive outcome,
- (4) The skills to deal with physically challenging situations,
- (5) Help dealing with potential fear and anxiety in the classroom,
- (6) A defined plan of action for when an incident occurs.

The course will provide real-life examples of what is happening in certain schools, why school staff are getting into trouble, and most importantly how to mitigate against that from happening.

It will also inform how the Courts are presently interpreting the law in schools. So, while we all may have different opinions in relation to this topic, it is of paramount importance to know how the courts are presently dealing with particular scenarios.
